Power to explore your world

The Tobii Dynavox EM-12 is a tablet-based speech generating device that is a versatile Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC) solution for mobile computer access and communication. It provides direct access to Windows 10, along with the most powerful communication software on the market – all in one product – giving individuals with physical and communication challenges the ability to navigate, access apps, and communicate with the exceptional power and performance of a Surface Pro tablet.

Built to grow with you

The EM-12 comes pre-installed with all of our latest communication software, which includes Snap™+Core First®, Communicator 5, Windows Control and Gaze Viewer. Bundling these communication platforms with a closed Surface Pro tablet and a durable case, creates a true Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC) device that can grow with you as your needs change. In addition, you can easily add eye-tracking with the EyeMobile Plus bracket if needed.

Exceptional power and performance

This solution lets you unlock the full potential of the powerful Surface Pro tablet. With even more speed and performance, thanks to a powerful Intel® Core™ processor, the EM-12 provides excellent and fast computer access.

Go further with worry-free battery performance

With the battery configuration of the EM-12, you no longer need to worry about unexpectedly losing power, computer access, or your ability to communicate. The Surface Pro can sustain itself with energy for up to 11 hours when idle, and up to 4 hours with normal usage.

Seamless integration of software and hardware

With the EM-12, users don't have to adapt to new hardware and interaction methods all the time. The device is fully compatible with all Tobii Dynavox software titles, which makes it easy to grow with one device through different software. Additionally, Windows 10 is touch optimized which makes it optimal for touch based communication. This keeps the investment in time, effort and hardware low and ensures the pure focus on the right software for the right use case. The EM-12 will meet you where you are and take you where you want to go.
